

TWO NEW PUBLICATIONS

Both result from a series of six seminars, funded by the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund, drawing together community development practitioners from different faith traditions to reflect and share good practice and the issues they encounter.

Keeping It Together

A reflective practice tool for faith based community development practitioners

Author: Steve Miller

This KIT, the latest addition to the Faith Based Regeneration Network 'Tools for Regeneration' uses the experience and insights of the practitioners who attended the seminars to offer activity-based tools for eight aspects of faith based community development:

- Ideology, ethos and belief
- Distinctive characteristics of faith based community development
- Whose agenda? – the public policy context
- Partnership – the messy reality of life or added value for all?
- Vision and leadership
- People and participation
- Resources – finance, buildings and ICT
- Reflection, evaluation and reflective practice

Price £7 plus £2 p+p

Purchase both books for £10 plus £4 p+p a discount of £4

Priceless – Unmeasurable?

Faiths and Community Development in 21st Century England

Author: Adam Dinham

Priceless, possibly unmeasurable was our first reaction when we looked at the results of our research into faith communities and community development. Our report draws together existing information from regions, adds further research and the findings from our Faith and Community Development seminar series to produce a national overview of

- what faith communities DO in community development
- what they ADD
- what they NEED

Price: £5 plus £2 p+p

The Authors

Adam Dinham is Director of the Faiths and Civil Society Unit at Anglia Ruskin University, Cambridge, and Visiting Professor at the University of Calgary, where he is developing comparative studies in faith-based policy and practice. Adam is co-director of FaithNetEast, a region-wide faith-based community development initiative in the East of England.

Steve Miller has been a social entrepreneur and community activist for over thirty years. He was a founder of the Faith Based Regeneration Network and continues to be a consultant on FbRN programmes. Steve has worked extensively in engagement programmes across the London region including leading the recent feasibility study into a Faiths Forum for London and he is a consultant to the FaithNetEast community development project.

The seminar programme and publications are a partnership between FbRN UK, Anglia Ruskin University, the Churches' Community Work Alliance and the Community Development Exchange.
