

Why We Eat How We Eat: Food Choices, Nutrition and the Politics of Eating

Conference:
24 February 2011
Goldsmiths
New Cross,
London.

This conference aims to bring together habitually disparate strands of research in the social sciences that address food and eating, to explore how each can contribute to the other to foster interdisciplinary and inclusive perspectives.

Hosted by the Department of Anthropology, Goldsmiths, in Partnership with SOAS Food Studies Centre.

For the full programme please visit the Department of Anthropology's Website: <http://www.gold.ac.uk/anthropology>.

Please register your attendance by Thursday 10th February by emailing eatingconference@gold.ac.uk. There is no charge for the conference.