Programme overview

This degree reflects the diversity and excitement of the subject in the new millennium, and gives you the opportunity to study the theory and practice of theatre and performance in a range of media.

Why study BA (Hons) Drama and Theatre Arts at Goldsmiths?
*You'll study in a dynamic department that offers you a balanced mix of theoretical and practical work so that both constantly inform each other
*We're located within easy travelling distance of central London, so you'll be close to one of the largest concentrations of performance practices in Europe
*Many of our staff are professional theatre-makers and internationally published researchers
*We have strong links with theatres, companies and professional organisations, with 7 Associate Organisations in London who collaborate with the department including LIFT, BAC and The Albany, Deptford
*You'll benefit from our excellent on-campus facilities, including a 160-seat theatre, five performance studios, newly refurbished scenic workshops an open-access media suite and sound studio
*In the most recent National Student Survey, 97% of students said that the course is intellectually stimulating, and 97% said that they are graduating with greater confidence in their communication skills
*You'll be supported in your career prospects by a dynamic extra-curricular Personal and Professional Development programme
*The degree provides training for working in the performing arts and creative industries; also the independent thinking and initiative, collaborative skills, and ability to conceive and develop ideas in an articulate and organised manner that will qualify you for a wide range of careers
*Our graduates have won prestigious awards as playwrights, directors, creators of new work, and cultural leaders in the UK and internationally

Our distinctive emphasis on performance and production work alongside and informed by theoretical and critical study (and vice versa), the stimulating atmosphere created by staff with diverse research expertise, and our location in the heart of London's performance culture, mean that we offer an unique approach to drama and theatre arts.
Programme entry requirements

Candidates from a wide range of academic and experiential backgrounds are considered and accepted onto the programme. A majority of students come through the A2/AS-Level route. Other routes include BTEC National/Certificate, European/International Baccalaureate, Scottish Highers, Irish Leaving Certificate, Advanced GNVQ/Vocational A Levels, and Access courses in appropriate areas. Mature candidates who do not possess any of the above entry qualifications are considered for admission on individual merits.

The degree has a long history of recruiting Access and other mature students. Students would generally be expected to have followed an Access course in a Humanities subject with a Drama, Theatre or Performing Arts component.

Mature applicants who have been out of education for some time are encouraged to take an approved Access course or one or more A2-levels (including Theatre Studies, English or Drama) before entering higher education. Applicants will normally be asked for examples of written work and called to interview.

A2 & AS-levels: The standard offer is ABB at GCE A2-level including a minimum Grade B in English Literature, English Language and Literature, Drama or Theatre Studies, or another humanities discipline. GCE A2-level General Studies is not accepted as one of the three A2-levels.

Post 16 reforms: The reformed post-16 curriculum enables students to study a broader range of subjects, and applications are welcomed from students whose AS-level subjects both complement and contrast with their A2-level in Theatre Studies, English or Drama.

EU Applicants: Applications from EU students are welcomed and all the major European qualifications are accepted.

Overseas (non-EU) applicants: Students from all countries are welcome to apply, and a variety of qualifications for entry can be presented. Each application is considered on its individual merits.

Further information about Admissions Criteria is available from the Admissions Enquiry Unit at Goldsmiths on 020 7919 7766 and/or the Goldsmiths College website and/or the UCAS website.

Aims of the programme

The Drama and Theatre Arts Programme (DTA) aims to provide one of the finest environments for the study and creation of theatre and performance in the country. Its integrated approach to the critical, historical, theoretical and practical study of theatre and performance helps to provide a creative and innovative learning environment for the development of 'engineers of the theatre' equipped with the creative imagination, conceptual sophistication and technical competence to 'interrogate, challenge and contribute to the practices and assumptions' of contemporary world theatre. Because Goldsmiths believes that the very best teaching is research-led, student-centred, creative and innovative, the teaching and learning offered by the programme is informed by the diverse and dynamic research interests of staff in partnership with students' aspirations and special interests within a stimulating and flexible scheme of study.

The programme aspires to:
- encourage independent thought, critical and evaluative ability, and intellectual curiosity
- promote student knowledge and engagement with key issues and debates in 21st Century performance
- develop students' awareness of the key elements of performance, leading to an understanding of the principles and techniques of theatre-making
- foster an awareness of the role of society, culture and history in both the making and the theorisation of theatre and performance.
Promote a cross-cultural awareness of performance practices and theories
- Enhance students’ understanding of the interaction between theory and practice in all areas of performance study
- Raise awareness of the role of environmental, social or architectural contexts for performance and theatre
- Provide a context for students to develop the appropriate critical, analytical and practical vocabularies for making and understanding performance and theatre
- Encourage students to develop the rigorous practical skills necessary in the organisation, production and presentation of theatre
- Develop students’ skills in conducting and articulating research via presentation in written and oral forms, and in different media
- Provide a stimulating learning environment in which the enthusiasm for the study and practice of the subject is encouraged and enhanced
- Promote professionalism and rigour in all aspects of students’ study, demonstrated via a range of transferable skills and intelligences: working in groups, self-management, self-discipline, time management, project conception, strategy and planning

How you will learn

The department believes in maintaining a range of learning contexts that facilitate a wide variety of modes of learning and teaching at all levels: the lecture; the seminar (with group research and presentations); practical sessions with a laboratory and/or training emphasis; bespoke workshops articulating a specific idea, question or technique; supervised, student-led and/or independent rehearsals; opportunities for guided and peer-assisted learning especially in production development; scratch and work-in-progress sharings; and visits to professional theatre (recommended across a range of performance venues).
of modules). There are extra-curricular opportunities for learning that are free of charge and open to all, such as the Performance Research Forum with its regular offering of performance/lectures reflecting a broad range of contemporary professional, international practice or the Performance Research Seminar Series with its presentation of an inspiring range of scholarly papers from distinguished guest speakers.

A majority of the modules offered on the programme incorporate, in varying degrees, the above elements in their modes of delivery. The weekly seminar, used in most modules, reinforces knowledge gained through lectures, reading, and practical explorations, promotes collaborative research and enhances students’ understanding of the subject. Practical sessions and workshops also incorporate seminar discussion to give students the opportunity to draw their own links between readings/ viewings and the practical tools studied.

The trajectory of learning and teaching viewed follows a spiral structure over the span of three years: while the emphasis and objectives for each level of study remains distinctive, the ‘spiral learning’ principle ensures that there is a sense of return to the same territory from a deeper, more specified level of understanding so that at each level practical, analytical, critical skills are developed and honed further and their independent application is extended.

In the first year, the method of teaching and learning on each module is by weekly lectures, seminars and workshops - split into any of the following combinations: one-hour lecture plus two-hour seminar or studio workshop; three-hour workshop; or one-hour seminar or lecture plus two-hour workshop. The four first-year modules are compulsory and designed to support and develop all the learning outcomes outlined above. Lectures and seminars address all the outcomes. These understandings and knowledge gained during the first year are further enhanced and sustained by year 2 and 3 modules where the teaching and learning strategies allow certain freedom of choice from a range of optional elements, while ensuring a balanced and comparable experience for all students across the programme. As in year 1, the modules in years 2 and 3 are taught using varying combinations of lectures, seminars and workshops. The lectures and workshops offer core knowledge, while the seminars enhance understanding. Students are continuously encouraged to watch professional performances as a means of consolidating knowledge and understanding acquired in the classroom. The second and third years also encourage and provide a context for students to begin to take more responsibility for and control of aspects of their learning. All of this is underpinned by tutorial support available by appointment and staff office hours during term time. Independent study on the year 3 Dissertation which spans a long process starting with preparatory research and tutorial at the end of year 2, is supported by library and electronic resources, which are provided by Goldsmiths Information Services as well as an assigned Tutor throughout the development of this project. Additional support is available through the University of London library network.

How you will be assessed

The assessment procedure encourages the use of a full range of critical approaches, theoretical models and modes of expression throughout the programme. The main forms of assessment are through essays, formal written examinations, practical project (in the form of student-led workshops, group performances, assessed rehearsals, group practice presentations as well as full productions), dissertation, portfolio, and seminar presentation. Seminar presentations and portfolios are used to assess the whole range of outcomes.

Typically, across a range of modules, a student’s assessments in a year will take the form of a few critical/analytical essays, a production project in which s/he will be assessed both as part of a group and individually, a presentation of practice framed by an oral presentation, and an exam. These modes of assessment are employed in various combinations as appropriate to individual module aims and objectives. Continuous assessment and/or assessment of process in studio-based modules is enabled by the use of assessment modes such as project plan, assessed rehearsals, and critical reflection essays used in several modules.
This allows students’ individual development/progression during the module and/or within or set practical projects to be measured as well as providing instances of feedback during a creative process rather than at the end, in keeping with the department’s view of the study of theatre as process. Formative assessment appears where appropriate in studio-based modules. In such modules that run over two terms (e.g. space-bodyspectator), several assignments are spread across the module to assess the student’s progress developmentally.

Written work
Students’ written work will be assessed in a manner appropriate to the requirements of any particular module essay, assignment, dissertation or examination. In relation to coursework and examination essays, students are assessed with regard to:
1. an ability to write lucidly and with focused relevance
2. an ability to identify and examine key issues in relation to the work in hand
3. an ability to draw upon and evaluate primary and secondary sources as appropriate
4. an ability to sustain a critical response through the development of coherent analysis
5. evidence of insight, intelligence and stylistic aptitude in presenting written criticism.

In relation to other kinds of written presentation – for example essay plans, project outlines, briefing documents, summarising reports – students are assessed with regard to:
1. an ability to present the required work in a clear and appropriate form
2. an ability to distil and summarise relevant information and to develop appropriate analysis, recommendations and conclusions
3. evidence of insight and intelligence in handling and presenting relevant material.

Practical work
Assessment methods reflect the philosophy, aims and objectives of the individual module. These recognise that theatre-making entails some form of collaborative process and that practical outcomes will usually depend upon people’s working relationships. They are also designed to reflect each individual’s contribution and achievement.

Students are assessed with regard to
1. the application of various forms of skills and creative ability (for example: technical, conceptual, dramaturgical, organisational, interpersonal, performative)
2. levels of attainment in relation to the objectives of the project and the student’s role within it;
3. intellectual discipline in carrying out and articulating the project’s research, aims and processes

Assessment will address
1. the ability to contribute and develop ideas and activities in relation to a particular process of theatre-making;
2. the application of appropriate techniques for the development and communication of the work in hand;
3. the ability to assess critically the work at different stages, evaluate possibilities for change and development and account for the project’s aesthetic, dramatic and/or cultural implications;
4. the ability to relate to the circumstances of a defined performance context and to the work of other practitioners
5. the ability to analyse and reflect critically on students’ own work and that of their peers

Continuous assessment
This concerns in particular the work of students during a process over a period of time, rather than the presentation of a finished product alone. It takes into account:
1. evidence of due preparation for the work in hand (research, warming-up, readiness for participation etc. as appropriate);
2. the nature of engagement with the work in hand (this includes proper time-keeping and discharging of responsibilities);
3. the nature of the individual’s relationship with the group (including ability to work productively with others, negotiate group dynamics, problem-solve and take responsibility in group situations where appropriate).

Examiners will usually arrive at a continuous assessment mark by observing students’ work at different points, rather than in its entirety. They are concerned to take a view of the development of that work and the individual student’s progression and contribution to the progress of the assigned activity.

Oral presentations
Oral presentations (normally in a group) will usually take place within seminars. Assessment will take into account the requirements of the particular project, along with the circumstances in which the presentation is delivered.

Students are assessed with regard to:
1. an ability to communicate lucidly and with focused relevance
2. an ability to identify and examine key issues in relation to the work in hand
3. an ability to draw upon, display and evaluate primary and secondary sources as appropriate
4. an ability to sustain a critical response through the development of coherent analysis
5. preparedness and efficiency with regard, where appropriate, to the distribution of photocopies, use of technical equipment (for example PowerPoint projectors and other audiovisual aids) and display of documents or objects
6. evidence of insight, intelligence and effectiveness in relation to the work in hand.
7. collaborative skill as relevant

Text-based assessment: Written work demonstrates full independence of thought, sophisticated powers of analysis and synthesis and exceptional insight into primary sources, context and method. It displays an exceptional application of knowledge and understanding, with a commensurate, professional standard of execution, excellently structured. Ideas are communicated with linguistic skill.

Creative Practice: This demonstrates exceptional qualities of individuality and conceptual coherence. There is a high level of evidence of a synergy of research-in-practice methodology, critical understanding and imagination. The work articulates aims of contemporary relevance and engages with aesthetic and practical issues with originality. All materials are produced to an exceptional standard, in the form of performance with supporting research materials, as relevant. Accompanying written work evidences an outstanding understanding of context and a range of critical approaches. Practical assignments demonstrate an exceptional approach to theatre making, excellent collaborative skill and creative innovation. The work performed is a synergy of excellent technical and compositional skill as well as outstanding performance in the chosen role or responsibility. All work presented within this praxis module will be of the highest professional standards.

Text-based assessment: Written work demonstrates independence of thought, sophisticated powers of analysis and synthesis and insight into primary sources, context and method. It displays a high calibre application of knowledge and understanding, and a commensurate standard of execution, excellently structured. Ideas are communicated with a high level of skill.

Creative Practice: This demonstrates significant originality, individuality and conceptual coherence. There is clear evidence of a synergy of research-in-practice methodology, critical understanding and imagination. The work articulates aims of contemporary relevance to the field and engages with aesthetic and practical issues in a highly competent manner. All materials are produced to an outstanding standard, in the form of performance with supporting research materials, as relevant. Accompanying written work evidences a high level of understanding of context and a range of critical approaches. Practical assignments should demonstrate a highly skilled approach to theatre making, excellent collaborative skill and creative distinctiveness and originality. The work performed is a synergy of technical and compositional skill as well as outstanding performance in the chosen role or responsibility. All work presented within this praxis module will be to high professional standards.

How the programme is structured

The programme is offered as a full-time three-year study leading to a degree in Drama and Theatre Arts. It offers the analytical, critical, historical, practical and creative study of theatre and other modes of performance. All students take the equivalent of 360 Cats (120 CATS at each level).

Full time students are required to have passed in modules to a minimum of 90 CATS each year before proceeding. In order to graduate students normally must have passed at least 300 CATS of which at least 90 CATS must be passed in year 3 (Level 6 FHEQ).

All modules in year 1 are compulsory and they are designed to provide an introduction to the critical thinking and methodological approach to the subject that will form the basis of their studies. These modules prepare the students by providing them with the tools to interrogate and begin take responsibility for their own learning. The 120 CATS offered in year 2 (Level 5 FHEQ) provide a wide range of optional elements designed to help students make choices and focus on the specialised nature of the subject. In year 3 (Level 6 FHEQ), 120 CATS offered across the three modules emphasise the cultural, historical and social specificity of the subject in a study environment in which students have an increased responsibility for their own learning as well as being able to develop their specialist interests via both dissertation and the options in Theatre Making 3 and Culture and Performance B. The optional elements in years 2 and 3 listed below are indicative. Since they are dependent or driven by staff research interests, availability and current issues in the field,

Year Two (Level 5 FHEQ):

Elements of Theatre History (30 Cats)
Comprising two options from the following: Elements of African Theatre History, French Theatre, Greek Theatre, Polish Theatre, Irish Renaissance and Revolution, Spanish and Catalan Theatre, Shakespeare/Renaissance Theatre, American Theatre in the mid 20th century, Russian Theatre, Italian Theatre

Questions of Performance (30 Cats)
Comprising two options from the following: Audience, Emotion, Character 1 and 2, Play, Performing the Community, The Self, Gender, Memory, Voice/Text, Image.

Theatre Making 2 (30 Cats)
Students work in companies to devise short production exercises, choosing one from the following options: Scenography (Lighting, Set, Sound or Costume), Stage Management, Directing, Dramaturgy, Performing

Modernisms and Postmodernity A (15 Cats) Theoretical introduction

Modernisms and Postmodernity B (15 Cats)
Indicative Options: Bertolt Brecht and Political Theatre, Post-colonial Theatre, Theatre and the Artistic Avant Garde, Samuel Beckett: Performance, Writing and Philosophy, Women Feminism and Playwriting

Year 3 (Level 6 FHEQ):

Culture and Performance A (15 Cats) Critical Cultural Theory

Culture and Performance B (15 Cats)
Indicative options: Art and Japan, Modern Black, British and American Drama, Translation across Languages, Cultures, Genres, Theatre as Learning Medium

Dissertation (Compulsory) 9 – 10,000 words (45 Cats) Tutored from all members of staff according to student research interests and staff specialisms

Theatre Making 3 Projects (30 Cats)
Students choose to specialise in one of the following: Live Art, Performing and New Writing Devised Performance, Applied Theatre

Academic support

Every registered student is assigned an Academic Advisor who looks after/monitors the student’s progress through the programme, by offering advice, guidance and clarification of modules, options, requirements and regulations. In addition, the Academic Support and Advice Tutor provides workshops and one-on-one tutorials to assist students in acquiring academic skills such as critical reading, research in and out of the library and essay writing. A Diagnostic Essay is set for every incoming year 1 (Level 4 FHEQ) student in the Autumn Term to assess their standard of writing and guide them towards any specific support as needed. The Department’s Senior Tutor (x 3 – one for each cohort) advises students on all issues, pastoral and otherwise, that may affect student progress with confidentiality where requested.

The Department is aware that our students have different needs and we try to give particular support where necessary. We will, where practicable, endeavour to make reasonable adjustments to our modules in order to facilitate the learning and teaching requirements of students with special needs and the Department works closely with the college Disability Office where necessary. The medical, counselling and financial services provide support, and in the case of students with special needs (including dyslexia), the Student Support Office and Disability Office provide sympathetic advice and help. Overseas students are supported in their English writing and communication skills with modules in ELC (English Language Centre). Goldsmiths provides a wide range of other support services for students, which can be found on its website at www.gold.ac.uk. In addition, department academic staff are available via office hours each week and certain modules include timetabled tutorial support.

Student learning is supported by the Rutherford Building Library which houses Goldsmiths’ extensive book, computer, multi- media, and audio-visual study resources. The Library also houses the LIFT (London International Festival of Theatre) video archive. All registered students also have access to the University of London libraries network.
The Department of Theatre and Performance has its own dedicated specialist facilities, comprising of a 160-seat Theatre and four additional fully equipped studio/rehearsal/performance spaces and one studio with a dance floor. Where necessary, pooled spaces in college are used e.g. for screenings, seminars and practical classes and performances. Technical support is provided by our new Open Access sound studio and digital design/editing Lab plus 3 scenography workshops, and a versatile wardrobe section.

Staff research interests that support and extend learning and teaching are accessed in a number of ways, via publication online and in books and journals, via public performance and presentations outside College and via the Research Forum that invites department staff and colleagues in and beyond College to present their research in the form of a talk.

Our online support for learning and teaching is rapidly growing alongside College culture as a whole and as specific to our students’ needs. The Department is continuously innovating its use of the Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) learn.gold which has become embedded in our module and programme management across all levels and is now also implemented as a mechanism for assessment submission and feedback. In addition, our department web pages remind students of events and programmes such as public lectures, Performance Research Forum programmes, Research Forum talks and other events. Students are regularly informed of current professional theatre in London via our notice boards and mailings.

Students also benefit from activities sponsored by our two Departmental Research Centres, The Pinter Centre for Performance and Creative Writing and the Centre of the Body.

Alongside our 7 Associate Organisations in London (LIFT, BAC, ArtsAdmin, Unfinished Histories, CEN8, The Albany, The Almeida) the department has over one hundred partners in learning within professional contexts providing additional support for student learning. Members of staff as researchers and as creative practitioners, directors, writers, dramaturges, project leaders workshop leaders, translators, and/or consultants have direct interaction with a range of creative industries which in turn further nourishes the department’s learning environment. This interaction leads to the regular participation of prominent professionals as Visiting Tutors on modules.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and career prospects

It is not possible to present reliable numerical data as to the success of past students, as many change their jobs frequently as part of their freelance career strategies. However, we know from the large numbers that stay in touch with the department (both home and overseas) that the degree provides them with the range of skills to be attractive to employers in a large number of different areas. Our recently revised Personal and Professional Development programme aims to provide students with the self-confidence and initiative to begin to develop their portfolios as young artist/scholars as well as to gain a better understanding of the ways in which their academic and practical skills can be applied and transferred to a range of other careers. The programme also includes special events that bring current students in touch with graduates in order to facilitate creative collaborations and networking, generate a sense of community, and celebrate the range of possibilities that are available.

Department graduates are employed in the following sectors:

The theatre and the media: as actors, performers, directors, writers, dramaturges, scenographers, technicians, theatre and production administrators and in production and company management, audience development and fundraising, literary and artistic management, television and radio research and production, as well as journalists in media, local radio and television.

Arts administration/management: as creative personnel within theatres, touring companies, arts councils, regional development agencies, local authority leisure services; administrative, technical and artistic management of arts centres, conference, heritage and tourist facilities.

Applied theatre and community arts: working in theatre in education, community theatre and youth work, adult education and theatre outreach work and arts redevelopment projects in a number of different roles.

Scholarship and education: in publishing, archive work, teaching in schools and universities, higher degree research, and practice based degrees.

Students also gain employment in a range of companies within both the commercial sector the third sector, such as charities and NGOs and areas of social entrepreneurship which may have nothing to do with the theatre, but everything to do with efficiency, competence and utilising the range of transferable skills gained on the programme.

The requirements of a Goldsmiths degree

Undergraduate degrees have a total value of 360 credits. They are composed of individual modules, each of which has its own credit value. Full-time students take modules to the value of 120 credits each year and part-time students not less than 45 credits and not more than 90 credits each year. Each full-time year corresponds to a level of the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications.

Year 1 = Level 4
Year 2 = Level 5
Year 3 = Level 6

Modules:

Modules are defined as:
“Optional” – which can be chosen from a group of modules
“Compulsory” – which must be taken as part of the degree
“Core” – which must be taken as part of the degree and passed with a mark of at least 40%.

Progression:

Full-time students are required to have passed modules to a minimum of 90 credits before proceeding to the next year. Part-time students normally must pass new modules to a minimum value of 45 credits before proceeding to the next year.

In addition, some programmes may specify particular modules which must be passed, irrespective of the minimum requirements, before proceeding to the next year.

Award of the degree:

In order to graduate with a classified degree, students must successfully complete modules to the value of 360 credits. However if a module which has not be defined as “core” has been failed with a mark of 35-39% and all three permitted attempts have been used, this module may be compensated (treated as if it has been passed) so long as the average mean mark for all 120 credits at that level is 45% or above. No more than 60 credits may be compensated this way across a programme and no more than 30 at any one level.

Classification:

Final degree classification will be calculated on the basis of a student's best marks for modules equivalent to 90 credits at Level 4, 105 credits at level 5 and 105 credits at level 6, applying a relative weighting of 1:3:5 to modules at level 4, 5 and 6 respectively.

Degrees are awarded with the following classifications:
First Class – 70%+
Upper Second – 60-69%
Lower Second – 50-59%
Third – 40-49%
Students who, following the application of compensation and having used all their permitted resit attempts, have passed modules to the value of 300-345 credits, at least 60 of which are at level 6 may be awarded a pass degree.

Intermediate Exit Points:
Some programmes incorporate intermediate exit points of Certificate of Higher Education and Diploma of Higher Education, which may be awarded on the successful completion of modules to the value of 120 credits at level 4 or 240 (120 of which at level 5) credits respectively. The awards are made without classification.

The above information is intended as a guide. For further information, please refer to the Regulations for Undergraduate Students, which may be found here: http://www.gold.ac.uk/governance/studentregulations/

How teaching quality will be monitored

Goldsmiths employs a number of methods to ensure and enhance the quality of learning and teaching on its programmes.

Programmes and modules must be formally approved against national standards and are monitored throughout the year in departmental staff/student forums and through the completion of module evaluation questionnaires. Every programme also has at least one External Examiner who produces an annual report which comments on the standards of awards and student achievement.

This output is considered with other relevant data in the process of Annual Programme Review, to which all programmes are subject, and which aims to identify both good practice and issues which require resolution.

Every six years all programmes within a department are also subject to a broader periodic review. This aims to ensure that they remain current, that the procedures to maintain the standards of the awards are working effectively and the quality of the learning opportunities and information provided to students and applicants is appropriate.

Detailed information on all of these procedures are published on the webpages of the Quality Office (http://www.gold.ac.uk/quality/).
