Programme Overview

This degree is unique within the University of London as it focuses on the arts of the modern period internationally (primarily since 1945), on issues both affecting and reflected upon by contemporary art practices, and on the framing of the idea of contemporaneity itself as an important contingent and contested means of evaluating artworks. The programme explores a diverse range of theoretical, methodological and archival perspectives that have influenced the formation of the discipline of the History of Art, and places considerable emphasis both on the ways that such increased sophistication and diversity has led to the emergence of Visual Culture as a field of study and the most recent developments in this discipline.

Within this framework, students are expected and encouraged to develop a critically independent approach to the interpretation of works of art, to examine shifting conceptions of the artist and to explore Visual Culture in its widest political, historical, aesthetic and technological contexts. The programme pays attention to an inclusive variety of art practices and media, including performance and installation art, the moving image and the built environment.

The programme also introduces students to an array of philosophical and theoretical debates, which bear on the understanding of the status of the art object in broader social ways. These include approaches to post-colonial culture, space, exhibition and display, sexuality and gender. In addition, Goldsmiths is well placed for the first hand study of contemporary art and culture in London. Structurally, the programme makes considerable use of these resources. Students are expected (with guidance and discussion) to take an active role in making themselves familiar with the city’s various cultural institutions and to make use of these as primary resources in set coursework and in their own pieces of carefully supervised original research.

Programme Entry Requirements

Successful completion of three A-levels with ABB
BTEC: DDM
34 points in the International Baccalaureate
Equivalent to A-level ABB in other EU and overseas qualifications

Aims of the programme

The aims of the History of Art programme are
1) to produce students with a pronounced awareness and critical grasp of developments in modern and contemporary art practices, aesthetics, history and criticism, and the socio-political and cultural forces that have informed and are informed by them;
2) to produce students with a broad range of independent critical tools with which to broach and assess such matters and the necessary skills to successfully articulate their findings and understandings of these matters.

What you will be expected to achieve

Learning Outcomes state what the learning and teaching of the programme enables students to do upon completion of every level. The modules provide them with the teaching and resources they will need to attain these outcomes. Learning Outcomes form the basis of their assessment on the individual modules. Learning Outcomes must be attained to a pass standard for completion of the degree.

By the end of the programme successful students will have:

How you will learn

Students reach the above History of Art learning outcomes through lectures, seminar discussion and presentations, tutorials and through the structure of required collaborative research projects and other coursework.

The year by year progression in the structure of the programme, and the patterns of diverse modes of formative and summative assessment facilitate these outcomes in the following manner:

Level 4

The level 4 programme consists of a Core Module and three additional modules that are all compulsory for the BA History of Art Single Honours students (120 CATS overall). The Core Module, Modernities, is a lecture and seminar series which introduces students to key ideas, arguments, events and works of art associated with the concepts of modernity and modernism. The other three modules approach the study of art and visual culture through thematic frameworks: Seeing and Showing, Space and Time, and Beyond Boundaries. These modules, which also consist of lectures and seminars, introduce the central theoretical, methodological and archival disciplinary concerns for Art History and Visual Culture, including questions of display and collecting, technology, representations of the body, cultural, sexual and other forms of difference, as well as a number of concerns relating to generic modes and techniques of cultural production. This lecture/seminar provision also creates structured occasions a) for the exercise of theoretical resources, research methods and considerations of the constitution of archives of materials and b) introductions and visits to a representative array of cultural institutions in London.

Level 5

The level 5 programme comprises a Core Module (30 CATS) and series of Option Modules. The Core Module, Contemporaneities, is a lecture and seminar series which provides a survey of key concepts, theories and artworks of the late 20th century. The additional Option Modules are constituted so as to introduce students, at this crucial stage of their degree, to advanced formulations of materials which they have already had preliminary encounters with during their level 4 studies. Students choose options that have an overall value of 90 CATS.

The modules individually (and, at important points, in concert) address the pertinent questions of 1) the curatorial 2) art and ideas 3) space and place 4) sound and image and 5) embodiment and provide an overview of latter-day critical theories bearing on ideas of post-modern and contemporary global culture. Whilst focusing thematically on prevailing and marginal conditions in the current and post-1945 period, each of these modules also attends to the emergence of these conditions, and reflects in detail upon earlier important moments.

a) The level 6 programme consists of a series of Special Subject modules with an overall value of 90 CATS and the Art History Dissertation (30 CATS). The dissertation is something that students are encouraged to prepare for during and after (in the summer) their level 5 studies. The dissertation is so placed and structured as to allow students to fully and creatively exercise the interpretative and research methodologies encountered on the programme. Students are encouraged to consult closely with proposed supervisors before submitting dissertation titles, in order to explore the possibilities of the nature of their study during the year.

As with level 5, the range of level 6 modules is conceived in terms of 1) a fuller engagement with historical and other archival materials only indicatively encountered earlier in the programme, 2) making available a number of more advanced theoretical formulations of key disciplinary questions. As can be seen, these repeat areas of the level 5 array, but with greater intellectual nuance, as well as breadth and depth in archival materials. These matters are developed through the pursuit of a number of available pathways: Space and Place, the Curatorial, Sound and Image, Embodiment, Art and Ideas.

However, the level 6 Special Subjects are also structured to maintain ease of entry to those students who do not wish to follow particular pathways, and entry to level 6 Special Subjects is not conditional on attendance of specific level 5 Option Modules. Whilst offering and maintaining this structural intellectual coherence, students are at all points encouraged to venture outside the frameworks offered by the programme. This is with the advice, support and guidance of tutors in each instance.

b) Teaching on the programme is predominantly by lecture and seminar. Students are required to produce individual and group project work, and to lead seminars with their own research or by presentation of a given text. Here the term ‘text’ is conceived broadly, and may include particular artworks, documentaries, examples of cinema etc., as well as scholarly articles. However, a number of tutors also adopt innovatively interactive and discursive teaching methods. In addition, the use of the field trip and site visit serve as important pedagogical tools.

How you will be assessed

Modes of assessment all maintain a balance between summative and formative aspects. This ensures that students have opportunities for preparation, with constructive feedback, before they are summatively assessed. It enables them to learn about research methods and explore first-hand the processes by which knowledge is produced. It stimulates questioning of received modes of thought and presentation, whilst also encouraging detailed research into the current shape of a given area of study. However, original research findings also form parts of both formative and summative work.

The aim is to provide a comprehensive range of assessment methods across the programme to ensure that the diverse abilities of students can be demonstrated. These methods include conventional essays and dissertations, as well as research files and archive projects, creative journals, creative projects and collaborative group work. Where appropriate, students are encouraged to explore the possibilities offered by different media, including audio, construction, digital-visual and other formats. Through these different types of assessment, students develop a wide range of skills – in relation to research, the identification and structuring of specific problems, editing, citation, presentation and collaboration – which are transferable and enhance their employability.
ASSESSMENT MODES

As outlined above, modules at all levels are assessed by a combination of the following: Essays. Essays give the students the opportunity to explore a series of theoretical and historical aspects of a question within the framework of the discussion of the objects of Art History and Visual Culture. They allow students to exercise an intellectual discipline, to mount an argument effectively, to demonstrate a broader knowledge of pertinent issues through referencing, footnoting etc., and to reflect upon the findings of their research.

Creative Journals

The journal consists of weekly entries of 200 words each (overall length 3000 words). It serves to link materials encountered outside the lecture room with those being studied on the module and will allow for the combination of visual and textual materials in one piece of work. The diary like structure aids students to conceptualise the process of learning and allows them to reflect upon their development through an entire module. The Creative Journal will be accompanied on submission by a two-page statement which will allow students to reread their work and reflect coherently on it.

Research Files / Archive Projects

The Research File / Archive Project is aimed at demonstrating the breadth of research and grasp of a considerable range and diversity of materials. In modules that are interdisciplinary in nature, the Research File / Archive Project will help students locate the disciplinary source and context of arguments and methods. Each Research File / Archive Project will set up a problematic and plot its way towards a research plan. In its final stage, the Research File / Archive Project will have an overall length of 3000 words consisting of a 1000 word report on the problem researched and a commentary that links the collated materials and argues and illustrates the set problematic.

Creative Projects

This is a cumulative project, which involves an element of writing. Depending on the module, it may consist of a series of exhibition reviews and exhibition proposals, work placement reports or audio-visual materials, which will ultimately be presented as one project with an overall rationale. It enables students to conceptualise the process of research and learning and allows them to reflect upon their development through an entire module.

Dissertations (Level 6 only)

The dissertation is an extended piece of writing (between 8,000 and 10,000 words) which is the outcome of individual research on a topic of the students’ own choice. Work on the dissertation is largely independent, but is developed and monitored in consultation with a History of Art tutor through a series of individual tutorials in the summer before and during level 6 studies. It enhances students’ ability to carry out independent research making use of a wide range of visual and written material. It demonstrates their understanding of the themes and theoretical frameworks informing the chosen topic as well as their ability to identify and formulate a convincing argument and sustain it throughout the dissertation. It also evinces the students’ ability to present research material in a style and structure that is appropriate to the chosen subject.

Seminar Presentations

Though not used as a summative mode of assessment, most modules use the seminar presentation. Students have to make presentations of work (for which they will be given feedback and an indicative mark) as part of their formative assessment and before they will be allowed to submit other work for formal assessment. So, whilst it is itself not constitutive of the overall mark for the module, it is necessary to do the presentation in order to be able to submit the work that will constitute the overall module mark. Individual and/or group presentations are used as a way of generating discussion of central and related themes, and the presenters often have a great deal of responsibility towards the class to ensure that the material offered is clear, properly organised, relevant and well considered. Presentations may be based on salient points of some module reading, or on longer or shorter-term research work, which may be submitted later in the year. Whether individual or collaborative, the seminar presentation provides an invaluable opportunity to discuss work with peers and tutors.

Examining

All modules are double-marked internally and submitted to an External Examiner. The marks are approved by Examination Sub-Boards at which the External Examiners are present to monitor the proceedings and advise on borderline cases. The marks agreed by the Sub-Boards are submitted to the College Examinations Board, which has overall responsibility for validating the results.

Academic support

The department attempts to support the students’ learning with high quality lectures accompanied by seminars. The programme as a whole, as well as individual modules are fully supported by a Virtual Learning Environment (learn.gold) which not only acts as an archive for all programme and module documentation, but also as an accessible site for interactive, online learning, discussion, and feedback. There is also a BA and Graduate Diploma Virtual Office which supplements the department’s Undergraduate and Graduate Diploma Office by providing ongoing administrative information and support.

Personal Tutors

Each student is allocated a Personal Tutor at the beginning of their studies, and this member of the teaching staff will remain as that student's Personal Tutor until the end of their studies. (Arrangements will be made for tutors taking periods of research leave). Personal Tutors may be approached with any queries concerning matters of any pedagogical, but also any personal, financial or other nature. They are able to advise directly on pedagogical matters, and are able to direct students to appropriate services within the College for other questions.

Year Tutor

One member of staff is appointed with overall responsibility for each year of student intake. Their responsibilities involve co-ordinating module choices. They are the first point of contact for queries regarding progression on the programme.

Dyslexia Procedures
Students who think that they may be dyslexic but don’t have a formal assessment should ordinarily arrange to see the department’s Senior Tutor. The Tutor will acquaint him/herself with the student’s work and the background to the case, and then endeavour to secure appropriate access to support within the College. Students should contact their LEA to see whether they will pay for formal assessment and any additional equipment required to help learning, using the Disabled Student’s Allowance. If, in the view of the tutor, there is an urgency about the assessment, application may be made to the College Hardship Fund in order to cover the costs.

In order for special arrangements (e.g. extra time in examinations) to be made in cases of dyslexia, an application has to be made to the University of London’s Special Examination Committee, or to the College Board of Examiners via the Programmes Office. Applications need to be made at least six weeks before the start of the examination period.

Language Support

The Department of Visual Cultures has very close working ties with the English Language Centre. All students, though especially those for whom English is not their first language, are encouraged to attend the regular classes that are offered. Members of the ELC attend many of the lectures given in the Department and involve themselves not only in the simple textual side of language requirements such as grammar and usage, but also in the technical language and other specific content matters of the programme.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and career prospects

The BA History of Art programme prepare students for life after the college together with the ability and confidence to earn their living by being flexible, self-motivated and multi-skilled. The experience of the programme helps students to develop as autonomous individuals, committed to life long learning with valuable skills in communication (including public speaking, developing and presenting an argument, note taking, report writing) and analytical thinking. They also develop awareness of social, political and cultural processes as well as of social and cultural differences. These skills provide a good foundation for a number of career paths.

Most students of this degree find employment in arts related areas (arts education, curating, arts administration, writing etc.), or move further into postgraduate education. While at Goldsmiths, many take up jobs, internships and volunteer positions at museums and other gallery and exhibition spaces internationally. This regular connection with the Department has led to work for many in the UK, the rest of Europe, the USA, Asia and Australia. Such areas as advertising and product styling are important destinations too. Arts and other forms of journalism also recruit frequently from the students of the Goldsmiths Art History programme.

A great number of graduates choose to continue their studies. The degree is very well regarded by those institutions internationally offering MA programmes in arts administration, curatorial practice, the history of art, architecture, film, design and fashion. Very many students from Goldsmiths have accepted grant-supported places on the most prestigious of these programmes. Many too have gone on to grant-supported doctoral and post-doctoral study, both here and abroad. It is also a degree that provides a suitable starting point to enter law or the teaching profession, for example, through suitable conversion programmes.

The requirements of a Goldsmiths degree

Undergraduate degrees have a total value of 360 credits. They are composed of individual modules, each of which has its own credit value. Full-time students take modules to the value of 120 credits each year and part-time students not less than 45 credits and not more than 90 credits each year. Each full– time year corresponds to a level of the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications.

Year 1 = Level 4
Year 2 = Level 5
Year 3 = Level 6

Modules:
Modules are defined as:
“Optional” – which can be chosen from a group of modules
“Compulsory” – which must be taken as part of the degree
“Core” – which must be taken as part of the degree and passed with a mark of at least 40%.

Progression:
Full-time students are required to have passed modules to a minimum of 90 credits before proceeding to the next year. Part-time students normally must pass new modules to a minimum value of 45 credits before proceeding to the next year.
In addition, some programmes may specify particular modules which must be passed, irrespective of the minimum requirements, before proceeding to the next year.

Award of the degree:
In order to graduate with a classified degree, students must successfully complete modules to the value of 360 credits. However if a module which has not be defined as “core” has been failed with a mark of 35-39% and all three permitted attempts have been used, this module may be compensated (treated as if it has been passed) so long as the average mean mark for all 120 credits at that level is 45% or above.
No more than 60 credits may be compensated this way across a programme and no more than 30 at any one level.

Classification:
Final degree classification will be calculated on the basis of a student's best marks for modules equivalent to 90 credits at Level 4, 105 credits at level 5 and 105 credits at level 6, applying a relative weighting of 1:3:5 to modules at level 4, 5 and 6 respectively.

Degrees are awarded with the following classifications:
First Class – 70%+
Upper Second – 60-69%
Lower Second – 50-59%
Third – 40-49%

Students who, following the application of compensation and having used all their permitted resit attempts, have passed modules to the value of 300-345 credits, at least 60 of which are at level 6 may be awarded a pass degree

Intermediate Exit Points:
Some programmes incorporate intermediate exit points of Certificate of Higher Education and Diploma of Higher Education, which may be awarded on the successful completion of modules to the value of 120 credits at level 4 or 240 (120 of which at level 5) credits respectively. The awards are made without classification.

The above information is intended as a guide. For further information, please refer to the Regulations for Undergraduate Students, which may be found here: http://www.gold.ac.uk/governance/studentregulations/

Programme-specific rules and facts

N/A
How teaching quality will be monitored

Goldsmiths employs a number of methods to ensure and enhance the quality of learning and teaching on its programmes.

Programmes and modules must be formally approved against national standards and are monitored throughout the year in departmental staff/student forums and through the completion of module evaluation questionnaires. Every programme also has at least one External Examiner who produces an annual report which comments on the standards of awards and student achievement.

This output is considered with other relevant data in the process of Annual Programme Review, to which all programmes are subject, and which aims to identify both good practice and issues which require resolution.

Every six years all programmes within a department are also subject to a broader periodic review. This aims to ensure that they remain current, that the procedures to maintain the standards of the awards are working effectively and the quality of the learning opportunities and information provided to students and applicants is appropriate.

Detailed information on all of these procedures are published on the webpages of the Quality Office (http://www.gold.ac.uk/quality/).
