Programme overview

The programme combines practical training in the core skills of musical theatre performance with study of the aesthetics and history of musical theatre. By honing your capacity for independent critical thinking, the degree promotes a flexible and self-motivated approach to the acquisition of the entrepreneurial skills essential for working successfully as a musical theatre performer or creative. The continuous self-reflection on the processes of training, devising, directing, musical staging and performance incorporated into most modules on the programme challenges you to become conscious of how and what you are learning so that you can explore and enhance your creative ability with appropriate self-awareness.

The degree is constructed to ensure a tiered approach to experiential learning:

- Psychophysical and analytical training: In the first year you will acquire a grounding in the basic techniques and styles of musical theatre performance (voice, movement, acting, singing and dance) and an introduction to analytical methods of interpreting musical theatre texts and performances

- Practical and critical approaches to aesthetics of the genre: The second year builds on the foundations of the first, enabling you to learn strategies to work independently as a musical theatre-maker by utilising more advanced and detailed knowledge of the history and aesthetics of the genre, thereby enriching your deployment of key performance skills in producing pieces of musical theatre from the repertoire

- Entrepreneurship in the creative industries: By learning in the final year how to conceptualise musical theatre in industrial and sociocultural terms you will acquire a sophisticated perspective on the cultural industries that will motivate your independent and collaborative writing, devising and performance of musical theatre pieces designed to showcase the range of your artistic resources as a professional performer, theatre-maker, administrator or teacher

Programme entry requirements

A-level: BBB
BTEC: DDM/DMM

IB: 33, including 3 HL subjects

International Students – IELTS: 7.0

Suitably qualified applicants will be invited to a workshop/audition day in which they will be required to sing a 2-minute prepared song and participate in a movement workshop.

Aims of the programme

The programme aims to prepare students to meet the varied demands of the theatre industry with informed intelligence, flexibility and a wide range of organisational and artistic skills: students will thereby learn to function independently to generate their own professional work. The self-reflexive nature of the programme aims to provide a student with a wide range of subject-specific and transferable skills for a freelance career as a musical theatre performer, industry creative, teacher, producer, administrator or community arts leader. Over the past decade the growing recognition of the need for British theatre to reflect the varied cultural experiences of a diverse population has increased career opportunities for people from ethnic minority groups. By marketing the programme intensively in the local area, Goldsmiths will aim to widen access to higher education, particularly in south-east London.

How you will learn

A wide range of pedagogical approaches reflects the multi-disciplinary nature of musical theatre, promoting student-centred learning and teaching. A typical module bearing 15 credits would require 150 study hours overall to achieve the aims of the module, of which e.g. 30 hours might be taught by means of a variety of teaching/learning strategies, as follows.

- Lectures: in order to convey specific kinds of knowledge in an efficient way
- Seminars: you will participate actively in group discussions of specific musicals, critical essays and themes led by an expert tutor
- Studio practice: group workshops devoted to your learning of particular skills (particularly acting, voice, movement and dance) or the exploration of creative ideas and problems as a performer, choreographer or director
- Tutorials: one-to-one sessions to train your voice and develop musical/singing skills and for the supervision of your individual creative and research projects
- Project development: small and large group sessions aimed at experimenting with and presenting excerpts from assessed projects for on-course feedback from teachers and peers
- Own-time practice and rehearsal: you will work outside of class time on individual singing exercises and in small or large groups to learn dances and rehearse scenes
- Reading and research: throughout the programme you are expected to spend private time reading texts, viewing performances and conducting library and field research in preparation for seminars and the writing of critical self-reflective papers or research essays
- Placement/observation: one of the optional modules requires you to undertake a short placement in a theatre organisation and/or interviews with industry practitioners

The programme places emphasis on experiential learning, enabling you to exploit the unparalleled resources of London in the following ways:

- By regular visits to musicals that form the basis for seminars in critical analysis and the technical study of performance skills and styles
- By regular classes with visiting professionals and occasional master classes with distinguished practitioners, who can provide you with a first-hand understanding of how the industry works
- Through the use of specialist libraries and archives for individual research projects, e.g. Victoria and Albert Theatre Collection, British Library, University of London Senate House Library
- By using the Department’s connection with a number of off-West End, fringe and community theatres and companies, which provide opportunities for placements

The Department of Theatre & Performance employs a team of research active staff – both scholarly and creative – whose expertise informs the design and delivery of teaching and learning. In addition, the department employs a large pool of Associate Lecturers who contribute specialist expertise. You will thus learn from tutors, visiting professionals, technicians, and peers in self-directed research and creative practice in a range of contexts. According to Goldsmiths Graduate Attributes, emphasis is placed on learning with and from peers in research and development of both seminar and practical assignments and in feedback in class or following the delivery of an assignment. Coursework will be supported by the fortnightly Performance Research Forum, in which a talk or performance by an industry professional is followed by a Q & A with students. The department sponsors other occasional events such as research lectures and seminars. Students are encouraged to develop collaborative skills as well as technical, IT and management skills. Such skills – essential for working in the industry – are acquired incrementally as student’s progress through various assignments. Group sizes for learning will vary, from an entire year cohort attending a lecture to groups of e.g. 20 students in a seminar and smaller companies for practice projects. Typical teaching and learning strategies will involve the integration of critical and creative faculties.

Your studies are supported by the active use of the Virtual Learning Environment by staff and students, providing a forum for discussion and exchange and a repository for coursework and research materials.

All new students write a short diagnostic essay in the first part of the Autumn Term. This provides tutors with an indication of the students’ ability and learning needs. Where appropriate, individual students might be referred to the English Language Centre for additional tutoring and essay writing support, and/or the Disability Unit for a dyslexia test. Where the latter indicates dyslexia or other learning needs the student receives bespoke support.

The programme is supported by departmental facilities that include technical workshops – prop making, set building and costume, and a costume store – and a technical staff team who both tutor and support all productions.

Students’ independent learning is supported by the Department’s Space Coordinator who ensures equitable access to rehearsal space.

How you will be assessed

You will be assessed both formatively and summatively via a wide range of written and practical assignments:

- Practical exercises
- Written reports
- Written exam
- Seminar presentations
- Research essays
- Textual analysis
- Performance analysis
- Performance projects
- Creative writing/devising projects

Assessment procedures test the capacity to employ a wide spectrum of critical approaches, theoretical models and modes of creative expression throughout the programme. Typically, across a range of modules, a student’s assessments in a given year will take the form of some analytical essays, a production project in which s/he will be assessed both as part of a group and individually, a presentation of practice framed by an oral presentation, a self-reflexive report and possibly an exam. These modes of assessment are employed in various combinations as appropriate to individual module aims and objectives.

This inclusive approach allows students’ individual progression during the module and/or within set practical projects to be measured as well as providing instances of formative feedback during a creative process rather than at the end.

Written work:

This will be assessed in a manner appropriate to the requirements of any particular module and assignment. In relation to written essays, students are assessed with regard to:

1. an ability to write lucidly and with focused relevance;
2. an ability to identify and examine key issues in relation to the work in hand;
3. an ability to draw upon and evaluate primary and secondary sources as appropriate;
4. an ability to sustain a critical response through the development of coherent analysis;
5. evidence of insight, intelligence and stylistic aptitude in presenting written criticism;

In relation to other kinds of written presentation - for example, project outlines, research statements, self-reflexive reports - students are assessed with regard to:

1. an ability to present the required work in a clear and appropriate form;
2. an ability to distil and summarise relevant information and to develop appropriate analysis, recommendations and conclusions;
3. evidence of insight and intelligence in handling and presenting relevant material;

Practical work:

Practice includes writing and devising musical material, a range of physical and psychophysical performance skills, directing strategies, performance aesthetics and styles in class exercises and project work (either solo or ensemble).

Students are assessed with regard to:

1. the application of various forms of skills and creative ability (for example: technical, conceptual, dramaturgical, organisational, interpersonal, performative);
2. levels of attainment in relation to the objectives of the project and the student's role within it;
3. intellectual discipline in carrying out and articulating a project's research, aims and processes;

Assessment will address:

1. the ability to contribute and develop ideas and activities in relation to the staging and devising of musical theatre pieces;
2. the application of appropriate techniques for the expression of the project in hand;
3. the ability to assess critically the work at different stages, evaluate possibilities for change and development and account for the project's aesthetic, and/or cultural implications;
4. the ability to comprehend your own creative abilities as part of the larger context of the theatre industry;
5. the ability to analyse and reflect critically on students' own work and that of their peers;

Continuous assessment:

This concerns the work of students during a process over a period of time, rather than the presentation of a finished product alone. It takes into account:

1. evidence of due preparation for the work in hand (research, warming-up, readiness for participation etc. as appropriate);
2. the nature of engagement with the work in hand (this includes proper time-keeping and discharging of responsibilities);
3. the nature of the individual's relationship with the group (including ability to work productively with others, negotiate group dynamics, problem-solve and take responsibility in group situations where appropriate);

Examiners will usually arrive at a continuous assessment mark by observing students' work at different points, rather than in its entirety. They are concerned to take a view of the development of that work and the individual student's progression and contribution to the progress of the assigned activity.

Oral presentations:

These will usually be given individually or in small groups within seminars and workshops. Assessment will take into account both the requirements of the particular project and the circumstances in which the presentation is delivered.

Students are assessed with regard to:

1. an ability to communicate lucidly and with focused relevance;
2. an ability to identify and examine key issues in relation to the work in hand;
3. an ability to draw upon, display and evaluate primary and secondary sources as appropriate;
4. an ability to sustain a critical response through the development of coherent analysis;
5. preparedness and efficiency with regard, where appropriate, to the distribution of photocopies, use of technical equipment (for example PowerPoint projectors, VLE applications and other audio-visual aids) and display of documents or objects;
6. evidence of insight, intelligence and effectiveness in relation to the work in hand;
7. collaborative skill as relevant.

Academic support

Support for learning and wellbeing is provided in number of ways by departments and College support services who work collaboratively to ensure students get the right help to reach their best potential both academically and personally.

Students are allocated a personal tutor and a Senior Tutor in each department has overall responsibility for student progress and welfare. Departments arrange regular communication to students in the form of mailings and meetings as well as regular progress reports and feedback on coursework and assignments. This is in addition to scheduled seminars, tutorials and lectures/workshops.

Personal tutors will invite students to meet in the first two weeks of a new term and regularly throughout the duration of a programme of study. These meetings aim to discuss progress on modules, discussion of the academic discipline and reports from previous years if available (for continuing students). This way progress, attendance, essay/coursework/assessment marks can be reviewed and an informed discussion can be about how to strengthen learning and success.

Goldsmiths
UNIVERSITY OF LONDON
Students are sent information about learning resources in the Library and on the VLE so that they have access to programme handbooks, programme information and support related information and guidance. Timetables are sent in advance of the start of term so that students can begin to manage their preparation and planning.

Taught sessions and lectures provide overviews of coursework themes, which students are encouraged to complement with intensive reading for presentation and discussion with peers at seminars. Coursework essays build on lectures and seminars so students are encouraged to attend all taught sessions to build knowledge and their own understanding of their chosen discipline.

In depth feedback is provided for written assignments and essays via written feedback forms and formative feedback with module tutors/leads is provided to ensure that students’ work is on the right track. Feedback comes in many forms and not only as a result of written comments on a marked essay. Students are given feedback on developing projects and practice as they attend workshops and placements.

A peer assisted learning (PAL) scheme is in place so that first year students have the opportunity to link with a second year student who can offer support and their experience on a range of academic related issues. This support is department-based so students have a common understanding of subject based knowledge.

Students may be referred to specialist student services by department staff or they may access support services independently. Information about support services is clearly provided on the College Website and as new students join Goldsmiths through new starter information and induction/Welcome Week. Any support recommendations that are made are agreed with the student and communicated to the department so that adjustments to learning & teaching are able to be implemented at a department level and students can be reassured that arrangements are in place. Opportunities are provided for students to review their support arrangements should their circumstances change. The Inclusion & Learning Support and Wellbeing Teams maintain case loads of students and provide on-going support.

The Careers Service provides central support for skills enhancement, running the Gold Award Scheme and other co-curricular activities that are accredited via the higher education achievement award (HEAR).

The Academic Skills Centre works with academic departments offering bespoke academic literacy sessions. It also provides a programme of academic skills workshops and one-to-one provision throughout the year, which students can access directly at gold.ac.uk/eas/.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and career prospects

The Department supports students’ career development through different forms of extra-curricular provision – of space for their own rehearsals and performances; funding of productions through Student Special Projects Fund; an Associate Artists scheme and Associate Researcher Schemes for recent graduates. The latter are supported by the Institute for Creative and Cultural Entrepreneurship

Students’ Professional Development commences in Year 2 with a programme of talks, workshops and events led by staff in the Department and the Institute for Creative and Cultural Entrepreneurship, which culminates in a showcase of performances for agents and producers in Summer term of the final year.

There are built-in links with employers through the following:

- Guest lectures by visiting practitioners
- Regular employment of industry professionals as teachers and project directors
- The Department’s long-standing connections with a number of London theatres
- Final year practical writing/devising project will enable students to position themselves in the job market
- The final showcase production will include invited agents and producers
The requirements of a Goldsmiths degree

Undergraduate degrees have a total value of 360 credits. They are composed of individual modules, each of which has its own credit value. Full-time students take modules to the value of 120 credits each year and part-time students not less than 45 credits and not more than 90 credits each year. Each full–time year corresponds to a level of the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications.

Year 1 = Level 4
Year 2 = Level 5
Year 3 = Level 6

Modules:
Modules are defined as:
“Optional” – which can be chosen from a group of modules
“Compulsory” – which must be taken as part of the degree
“Core” – which must be taken as part of the degree and passed with a mark of at least 40%. Progression:

Full-time students are required to have passed modules to a minimum of 90 credits before proceeding to the next year. Part-time students normally must pass new modules to a minimum value of 45 credits before proceeding to the next year.
In addition, some programmes may specify particular modules which must be passed, irrespective of the minimum requirements, before proceeding to the next year.

Award of the degree:
In order to graduate with a classified degree, students must successfully complete modules to the value of 360 credits. However if a module which has not be defined as “core” has been failed with a mark of 35-39% and all three permitted attempts have been used, this module may be compensated (treated as if it has been passed) so long as the average mean mark for all 120 credits at that level is 45% or above. No more than 60 credits may be compensated this way across a programme and no more than 30 at any one level.

Classification:
Final degree classification will be calculated on the basis of a student's best marks for modules equivalent to 90 credits at Level 4, 105 credits at level 5 and 105 credits at level 6, applyin a relative weighting of 1:3:5 to modules at level 4, 5 and 6 respectively

Degrees are awarded with the following classifications:
First Class – 70%+
Upper Second – 60-69%
Lower Second – 50-59%
Third – 40-49%

Students who, following the application of compensation and having used all their permitted resit attempts, have passed modules to the value of 300-345 credits, at least 60 of which are at level 6 may be awarded a pass degree

Intermediate Exit Points:
Some programmes incorporate intermediate exit points of Certificate of Higher Education and Diploma of Higher Education, which may be awarded on the successful completion of modules to the value of 120 credits at level 4 or 240 (120 of which at level 5) credits respectively. The awards are made without classification.

Programme-specific rules and facts

Every practical module must be passed before a student can progress to the next level of the programme.

How teaching quality will be monitored

Goldsmiths employs a number of methods to ensure and enhance the quality of learning and teaching on its programmes.

Programmes and modules must be formally approved against national standards and are monitored throughout the year in departmental staff / student forums and through the completion of module evaluation questionnaires. Every programme also has at least one External Examiner who produces an annual report which comments on the standards of awards and student achievement.

This output is considered with other relevant data in the process of Annual Programme Review, to which all programmes are subject, and which aims to identify both good practice and issues which require resolution.

Every six years all programmes within a department are also subject to a broader periodic review. This aims to ensure that they remain current, that the procedures to maintain the standards of the awards are working effectively and the quality of the learning opportunities and information provided to students and applicants is appropriate.

Detailed information on all of these procedures are published on the webpages of the Quality Office (http://www.gold.ac.uk/quality/).
