Programme overview

This is a well-established, highly successful programme with specialist pathways in Dramaturgy and Writing For Performance.

It concentrates on the process of writing for live performance, together with an ongoing evaluation of the work in process. Through practice and reflection, we enable you to establish a distinctive, individual creative approach.

We support the development of texts for performance, alongside an intellectual understanding of the diverse contexts in which live performance can be made. We examine texts from a wide range of periods and cultures. We engage with work that is innovative, or which challenges established notions of practice.

Dramaturges and performance writers study side by side, and examine creative and dramaturgical issues from various perspectives as writers, spectators and creative collaborators.

London continues to be a major world centre for a staggering range of arts activity. It is an excellent base for the study of performance, and for making professional and other creative contacts. It is a city which continues to generate innovative practice, and provide platforms for emerging artists.

We have strong links with a large number of London-based practitioners and organisations in the field of new performance writing, and many of these contribute directly to the teaching of the programme.

Programme entry requirements

Successful applicants will normally hold an appropriate first degree (usually at 2.1 level or higher) and have some relevant practical experience (either in a professional or non-professional context).

Alternatively, they may not hold a first degree (or hold one in an unrelated discipline) but have substantial and relevant professional experience. If an applicant is not a graduate, or if her/his degree is in an unrelated field, s/he may also be required to provide evidence of her/his ability to write in a critical, analytical way.

For admission to the Writing for Performance option, applicants will be required to show evidence of their ability as a writer for performance, and to convince us (through their personal statement on the application, their references and their interview) of their commitment to writing for live performance, their capacity for creative collaboration, and their ability to reflect critically on their practice.

For admission to the Dramaturgy option, applicants will be required (through their personal statement on their application, their references, their interview, and any supplementary documents they provide) to show evidence of their commitment to this area of practice, of their capacity for sympathetic creative collaboration, and their willingness and ability to undertake appropriate personal writing projects as part of their study.

Aims of the programme

The educational aims of this programme are informed by Goldsmiths declared focus on ‘the study of creative, cultural and social processes’; the QAA code of practice; Goldsmiths Learning and Teaching Strategy; and the Department of Drama's mission statement.

The primary aim of this MA programme is to develop the student's potential as a Writer or Dramaturge working in the field of live performance. It aims to develop the student's understanding of the craft of writing and of the diverse contexts in which new performance writing exists. During the course, s/he will examine various approaches to the generation, research and development of performance material; and to relationships between writers and other creative collaborators. S/he will examine a multiplicity of performance languages and dramaturgical approaches. S/he will analyse completed new work on the page and in performance.

The programme will enable the student to develop her/his own approach to dramaturgy and script development by enabling her/him to develop her/his practice through work on creative projects in a challenging but supportive environment; to test ideas through practice; and to develop her/his capacity for constructive self-reflection. By giving the student contact with diverse practitioners and organisations working in the field today, the programme aims to give her/him an up-to-the-minute engagement with the issues facing dramaturges and writers, and knowledge of where to seek opportunities for professional work.

The complementary/contextual option courses taken as part of the programme aim to give the student a critical engagement with a complementary area of performance practice, in order to broaden her/his knowledge and range of awareness and to contextualise the work of her/his specialism.

What you will be expected to achieve

By the end of the programme the student should be able to demonstrate:

How you will learn

Knowledge and Understanding

The acquisition of outcome A1 is through the teaching of specialist Writing Projects and through the contributions of visiting practitioners (agents, directors, dramaturges and playwrights) during Dramaturgy and the Final Project workshops. For some Dramaturgy students, this engagement will also be developed in dissertation practice research during the spring and summer terms.

With regard to outcomes A2 and A3, the autumn term Writing Projects and the autumn/spring term Creative Intervention in Text introduce the students to diverse script development methodologies, which the students investigate in an experiential way, where the students work on four short, discrete, contrasting supervised assignments. In their various capacities as Writer or Dramaturge, the students develop their personal engagement with these aspects during the Final Project of the spring and summer terms.
The Dramaturgy and Creative Intervention in Text courses offer seminar/workshops in dramatic text and performance text analysis to address outcome A4. Outcome A5 is addressed through seminar discussion and tutorial appraisal through the sequence of Writing Projects and the Final Project.

Cognitive and Thinking and Subject Specific Skills and other attributes

Outcome C1 is addressed through tutorial input and feedback on all written projects during the course, reinforced by written guidance on the presentation of academic work in the Department of Drama Handbook.

Outcome B1 is one focus of the seminars, workshops and tutorials throughout the Writing Projects, and a principal focus of the supervision of the Final Project, through the workshop and other structured activities provided.

Outcome C2 is one principal focus of the Writing Projects and the Creative Intervention in Text course; the awareness of diverse textual/performance strategies from the Dramaturgy classes, including the insights offered by diverse Visiting Practitioners in various aspects of the programme.

Outcome C3 is the focus of at least one of the autumn Writing Projects, which require the students to collaborate either with Performers or with other writers in the class on a short supervised project. In the spring/summer terms the various workshop and other practical activities, both in class and with external agencies, facilitate this development.

Outcome B2 is specifically developed in the Dramaturgy and Writing project seminar/workshops, and during the lecture/ seminars and essay tutorials for the two complementary/contextual courses.

Outcome B3 is addressed through the supervision of the essay projects for the option courses; through the supervision of the autumn term Writing Projects which explore these elements on an experiential basis; and in a more advanced, intensive way through the supervised spring/summer term Final Project.

How you will be assessed

Knowledge and Understanding

Outcomes are assessed through all written coursework elements.

In relation to assessed written coursework, including: critical essays, dramaturgical analyses and the final self-reflective analysis, students are assessed with regard to:

1) an ability to write lucidly and with focused relevance
2) an ability to identify and examine key issues in relation to the work in hand
3) an ability to draw upon and evaluate diverse primary and secondary sources as appropriate
4) an ability to sustain a critical response through the development of coherent analysis
5) evidence of insight, intelligence and stylistic aptitude in presenting written criticism
6) an ability to structure and sustain a coherent argument at an appropriate level.

Students' creative writing is assessed with regard to the following criteria:

1) the ability to originate, research and develop material in relation to a particular project
2) the application of appropriate techniques for the notation and/or presentation of the work in hand
3) the ability critically to assess the work at different stages, evaluate possibilities for change and development and account for the project’s aesthetic, dramatic and/or cultural implications
4) the ability to relate to the circumstances of a defined performance context and to the work of other practitioners.

<td>Distinction. In order to achieve 70% or over, the piece of work being assessed would need to demonstrate that the majority of the learning outcomes have been achieved to an Excellent level (distinction threshold). Marks in this category will be awarded to work which shows conceptual and stylistic distinction; which features a secure and discriminating acquaintance with the field of study; which engages with the subject in a notably intelligent way; and which is clearly and accurately presented. The work will be of outstanding achievement in all or a consistent combination of the above areas.</td>

Some of the qualities of first-class work may be found in this category but the difference will be either of degree or realisation. The work will be characterised by soundness of argument or analysis, acquaintance with the field of study, coherence and relevance. The work should be of high merit in all these areas, or considerable merit in some areas and a good standard in others.</td>

<td>Pass</td>
<td>In order to achieve 50-59%, the piece of work being assessed would need to demonstrate that the majority of the appropriate learning outcomes have been achieved to a satisfactory extent. Marks in this range will reflect solid competence and achievement, although the work might be partial rather than consistent in clarity, precision and effectiveness. It might, for example, rely too heavily on secondary sources at the expense of personal critical activity; be insufficiently detailed; or tend towards description rather than analysis. The work should be of good standard in the areas listed in the classification above or good in some areas and of a satisfactory standard in others.</td>

How the programme is structured

The programme can either be studied full-time (one year) or part-time (two years). Attendance at all scheduled sessions is compulsory.

The FULL TIME programme is as follows: Autumn Term
Complementary/Contextual Course - 300 hours (20 hours seminar; 280 hours independent study)
Dramaturgy - 300 hours (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study)
Writing Projects 300 hours - (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study incl. group workshops)

Spring Term
Creative Intervention in Text - 300 hours (15 hours seminar; 285 hours independent study)

Spring/ Summer Term
Final Project - 600 hours (180 hours workshop/ rehearsal/public readings; 420 hours independent study)
For PART-TIME students, the programme is as follows:
Year One - Autumn Term
Complementary/Contextual Course - 300 hours (20 hours seminar; 280 hours independent study)
Dramaturgy - 300 hours (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study)
Or:
Writing Projects - 300 hours (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study incl. group workshops)
Part-time students must normally pass all assessments taken in Year One before proceeding to Year Two.
Year One - Spring Term
Creative Intervention in Text - 300 hours (15 hours seminar; 285 hours independent study)

Year Two - Autumn Term Either:
Writing Projects - 300 hours (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study incl. group workshops) Or:
Dramaturgy - 300 hours (30 hours seminar; 270 hours independent study)

Year Two - Spring/ Summer Term
Final Project 600 hours (180 hours workshop/ rehearsal/public readings; 420 hours independent study)

Academic support

The Department is aware that our students have different needs and we try to give particular support where necessary. We will, where practicable, endeavour to make reasonable adjustments to our modules, in order to facilitate the learning and teaching requirements of students.

Resources

Support for student learning is provided by the study resources that are available in the Rutherford
Information Services Building: extensive book and audio-visual collections, computer and multi-media equipment, Library and IT staff with expert knowledge. The Library also houses the LIFT (London International Festival of Theatre) video archive. All registered students also have access to the University of London libraries network. In addition, the Department of Drama has its own dedicated specialist facilities, theatre space and three additional fully equipped studio/rehearsal/performance spaces. Technical support is provided by the availability of sound and video recording and editing studios, plus scenic construction and costume/wardrobe facilities.

Two international arts organisations are based at Goldsmiths. The secretariat of CONCEPTS (The Consortium for the Co-ordination of European Performance and Theatre Studies) is based in the Department of Theatre and Performance and in 1997 the office of the British Centre of the International Theatre Institute moved to Goldsmiths. This UNESCO-affiliated organisation exists in over one hundred countries and provides the largest theatre network in the world. Together both organisations provide a unique research and professional contact facility.

Expertise is provided by the Department's resident faculty who are not only dedicated, experienced teachers but are also distinguished practitioners and researchers in their own right, working in national and international contexts. The Department also draws on a large pool of visiting practitioners and academics to provide a breadth of expertise and contact with current practice.

Resident tutors have a high level of professional experience in the development of new theatre writing, and continue to practice professionally (as writers, directors or dramaturges).

Through its use of visiting tutors, the Department ensures that students have the opportunity directly to engage with diverse new writing practice at the highest regional and national levels. Visiting practitioners have included the playwrights David Lane (an alumnus of the programme), April De Angelis and Duncan Macmillan, the dramaturges Hanna Slattne and Duska Radosavljevic, Literary Manager Jane Fallowfield (Talawa Theatre Company), the agent Lily Williams (Curtis Brown) and the Director of The Fence Jonathan Meth. The programme has strong links with leading national and regional organisations involved in new writing, such as the Royal Court, the Royal National Theatre, Paines Plough, Arcola and Soho Theatre. Such associations are kept under regular review to ensure the quality and currency of the programme.

Methods

The Department recognises the importance of supporting student learning with high-quality teaching on a predominantly small-group seminar/workshop basis with significant levels of individual tutorial support, particularly for independent projects.

Pastoral

Each Programme Convenor acts as a Personal Tutor to the MA students on their programme. This staff member will offer advice, guidance or clarification of courses, options, requirements and regulations, and monitors the student's progress through the programme. They can also offer support in cases of academic difficulty. Should further advice be necessary, the Senior Tutor or one of the Department's Examinations Officers can also be consulted.

Students can also make use of the College's medical, counselling and financial support services as necessary. In the case of students with special needs or specific learning difficulties (including dyslexia), the College’s Student Support Office will provide sympathetic advice and help. The College’s English Language Centre can provide help with written English.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and career prospects

The programme prepares graduates for professional employment as writers and dramaturges in mainstream and alternative contexts, for work on community projects and for specific audiences, for original work and for adaptation to live performance of work from other media. Students are prepared for employment on professional new writing cross-art-form projects (including, for example, work in dance and Live Art). To supplement their live performance practice students are prepared for many kinds of work that includes writing reviews, script reports, dramaturgical feedback and workshop skills.

This experience, together with the breadth of skill acquired during the programme, provide graduates with a strong foundation for seeking employment in a notoriously uncertain environment.

The requirements of a Goldsmiths degree

Master’s Degrees
All Master's degrees at Goldsmiths have a minimum value of 180 credits. Programmes are comprised of modules which have individual credit values. In order to be eligible for the award of a Master's degree students must have passed all modules on the programme.

Intermediate Exit Points
Some programmes incorporate intermediate exit points of Postgraduate Certificate and Postgraduate Diploma, which may be awarded on the successful completion of modules to the value of 60 credits or 120 credits respectively. Individual programmes may specify which, if any, combination of modules are required in order to be eligible for the award of these qualifications. The awards are made without classification.

Final Classification
There are four possible categories of final classification for Master's degrees: Distinction, Merit, Pass and Fail.

For further information, please refer to the Regulations for Postgraduate Taught Students, which may be found here: www.gold.ac.uk/governance/studentregulations/

Programme-specific rules and facts

Attendance at all scheduled sessions is compulsory.
Part-time students must normally pass all assessments taken in Year One before proceeding to Year Two.

How teaching quality will be monitored

Goldsmiths employs a number of methods to ensure and enhance the quality of learning and teaching on its programmes.
Programmes and modules must be formally approved against national standards and are monitored throughout the year in departmental staff / student forums and through the completion of module evaluation questionnaires. Every programme also has at least one External Examiner who produces an annual report which comments on the standards of awards and student achievement. This output is considered with other relevant data in the process of Annual Programme Review, to which all programmes are subject, and which aims to identify both good practice and issues which require resolution.

Every six years all programmes within a department are also subject to a broader periodic review. This aims to ensure that they remain current, that the procedures to maintain the standards of the awards are working effectively and the quality of the learning opportunities and information provided to students and applicants is appropriate.

Detailed information on all of these procedures are published on the webpages of the Quality Office (http://www.gold.ac.uk/quality/).
