

The Goldsmiths Prize 2019 in association with the New Statesman

Terms and Conditions of Entry

1. The Prize

- The Prize is worth £10,000, to be awarded to the writer who, in the opinion of the judges, has written a work of fiction that is genuinely novel and embodies the spirit of invention that characterises the genre at its best.
- The Prize may not be withheld or divided between two titles.

2. Eligibility

- Any full-length novel written in English by authors resident in the United Kingdom (Great Britain and Northern Ireland) or the Republic of Ireland for three years prior to the date of submission for the award, and published in the United Kingdom (Great Britain and Northern Ireland) or the Republic of Ireland between 1 November 2018 and 31 October 2019 is eligible for the Goldsmiths Prize 2019.
- No English translation of a book written originally in another language is eligible.
- Children's books (including young adult, teenage and crossover titles) will only be accepted on the condition that they have also been published by an adult imprint within the specified dates.
- Publishers whose registered offices are outside the United Kingdom or the Republic of Ireland but who distribute books in the United Kingdom are ineligible.
- Only the first publication of a title in the United Kingdom or the Republic of Ireland will be eligible (newly published editions of a title already published in the United Kingdom or the Republic of Ireland are ineligible, e.g. a paperback edition of a title previously published in hardback).
- E.books are eligible, but must be submitted in print form (6 copies). In the event of the book being shortlisted, the publisher must undertake to produce hard copies to be available to readers from bookshops, libraries and online retailers.
- All entries must be submitted by an established UK or Irish publishing house ('established' is defined as a house that publishes a list of titles by different authors, that produces titles with an ISBN and that distributes them through established retail outlets). Self-published books are not eligible for the Prize.
- A published work will be eligible regardless of being nominated, shortlisted or winning other prizes or awards.
- The author must be living at the date of a book's submission to the Prize.
- Only one entry per author is permitted.

- Staff and students of Goldsmiths, University of London, past or present, are ineligible for the Prize.
- The decision of the Chair of the panel of judges as to whether a book is eligible shall be final and no correspondence will be entered into.
- Publishers are reminded that it is their responsibility to ensure that all submitted titles are eligible for the Prize.

4. Judging

1. The judging of the Prize will be in two stages:
 - A shortlist of six titles shall be decided by the judges
 - The winner shall be decided by the judges
2. In the process of compiling a shortlist for the Prize, the judging panel has the right to call in titles they deem to be noteworthy for consideration. In this instance, publishers will be required to submit an entry form and the six copies as soon as possible.
3. The decision of the judges on the shortlist and the winner will be final and no correspondence shall be entered into.

5. Promotion of the Prize

In entering works to the Goldsmiths Prize 2019, the publisher agrees to work in collaboration with Goldsmiths to undertake a mutually acceptable limited programme of activities to promote the award which shall include, but not be limited to:

1. supplying biographical and bibliographical information, including but not limited to text extracts of up to 200 words, jacket images, author photographs and biographies, inside spreads and any additional material (trailers, audio extracts, etc.) requested that will help to promote the Prize.
2. using best endeavours to facilitate recorded interviews and other public activities with authors, to be used by Goldsmiths on the internet or media platforms to promote the Goldsmiths Prize 2019.
3. inviting the shortlisted author to the shortlist readings and the award ceremony, to cover their expenses and using best endeavours to ensure their attendance.
